

TEXT OF NOTE REVEALS BREAK WITH AUSTRIA NEAR; U. S. WILL SEND SHARP REPLY TODAY

Vienna Reserves Right of Maintaining Its Own Views in Discussion of Ancona—Officials Here Pessi- mistic and Foresee Trouble

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The text of the Austrian note on the Ancona sinking, as given out by the State Department this afternoon, follows:
"In reply to the much esteemed note No. 4187 which His Excellency, Mr. Frederick Courland Penfield, Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America, directed to him in the name of the American Government, under date of the 9th instant, in the matter of the sinking of the Italian steamer Ancona, the undersigned, preliminary to a thorough, meritorious treatment of the demand, has the honor to observe that the sharpness with which the Government of the United States considers it necessary to blame the commanding officer of the submarine concerned in the affair and the firmness in which the demands addressed to the Imperial and Royal Government appear to be expressed might well have warranted the expectation that the Government of the United States should precisely specify the actual circumstances of the affair upon which it bases its case."
"As is not difficult to perceive, the presentation of the facts in the case in the aforesaid note leaves room for many doubts, and even if this presentation were correct in all points, and the most rigorous legal conception were applied to the judgment of the case, it does not in any way sufficiently warrant attaching blame to the commanding officer of the war vessel or to the Imperial and Royal Government."

QUESTIONS SOURCES OF U. S. INFORMATION.
"The Government of the United States has also failed to designate the persons upon whose testimony it relies and to whom it apparently believes it may attribute a higher degree of credibility than to the commander of the Imperial and Royal fleet. The note also fails to give any information whatsoever as to the number, names and more precise fate of the American citizens who were on board of the said steamer at the critical moment."
"However, in view of the fact that the Washington Cabinet has now made a positive statement to the effect that citizens of the United States of America came to grief in the incident in question, the Imperial and Royal Government is in principle ready to enter into an exchange of views in the affair with the Government of the United States. It must, however, in the first place, raise the question why that Government failed to give juridical reasons for the demands set forth in its note with reference to the special circumstances of the incriminating events upon which it itself lays stress, and why in lieu thereof it refused to an exchange of correspondence which it has conducted with another Government in other cases."

MIGHT NOT ACCEPT U. S. STAND.
"The Imperial and Royal Government is the less able to follow the Washington Cabinet on this unusual path, since it by no means possesses authentic knowledge of the pertinent correspondence of the Government of the United States; nor is it of the opinion that such knowledge might be sufficient for it in the present case, which, insofar as it is informed, is in essential point of another nature than the case or cases to which the Government of the United States seems to allude. The Imperial and Royal Government may therefore leave it to the Washington Cabinet to formulate the particular points of law against which the commanding officer of the submarine is alleged to have offended on the occasion of the sinking of the Ancona."

"The Government of the United States has also seen fit to refer to the attitude which the Berlin Cabinet assumed in the above-mentioned correspondence. The Imperial and Royal Government finds in the much-esteemed note no indication whatever of the intent with which this reference was made. Should, however, the Government of the United States thereby have intended to express an opinion to the effect that a prejudice of whatever nature existed for the Imperial and Royal Government with respect to the juridical consideration of the affair in question this Government must, in order to preclude possible misunderstandings, declare that as a matter of course it reserves to itself full freedom of maintaining its own legal views in the discussion of the case of the Ancona."

REGRETS LOSS OF AMERICAN LIVES.
"In having the honor to have recourse to the kindness of His Excellency the Ambassador of the United States of America with the most respectful request to be good enough to communicate the foregoing to the American Government and on this occasion to state that the Imperial and Royal Government, in no less degree than the American Government and under all circumstances, most sincerely deplores the fate of the innocent victims of the incident in question, the undersigned at the same time avails himself of this opportunity to renew the expression of his most distinguished consideration to his excellency the Ambassador."
(Signed) "Penfield."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Characterizing the Austrian crisis as "very grave," Administration officials today admitted they are prepared for any eventuality. The new note will go to Vienna today.
Officials who know all of the circumstances declare they saw nothing in the information in the possession of this Government to warrant the optimism prevailing in Teutonic circles. It is made plain that unless Austria meets the wishes of the United States a break must come.
Responsibility for any break in the relations between Austria and the United States must rest with Vienna. This was made very plain at the State Department today. The rejoinder to the unsatisfactory Austrian reply on the Ancona will not be an ultimatum. Couched in language of unmistakable firmness, it will

STOLE PAPERS
OF BIG BANK
National City Vaults Looted by Orders of Plotter's Chief
CONFESSION BY CLERK

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Continuing their search for Germans accused of having plotted in the United States to destroy the Welland Canal, the police today arrested Frederick Schleinli, a young German employed as clerk in the commercial department of the National City Bank, the Rockefeller Institution.
The arrest was made by detectives led by Captain Tammey, after four other men, alleged to have been implicated in the plot, had been taken into custody.
The arrest of Schleinli is regarded as the most important made by the police since the German bomb plots were first discovered. In his home, 1165 Bryant avenue, the Bronx, the police say they discovered a great quantity of telegrams, cablesgrams and confidential messages stolen from the vaults of the National City Bank.
AGENT OF ALLIES.
"The bank is the largest in New York and is generally supposed to have ranked next to J. P. Morgan & Co. in handling financial matters for the Allies in America."
The four men under arrest in addition to Schleinli are:
Paul Koenig, chief of the bureau of investigation of the Hamburg-American Line and alleged head of the German secret service in the United States.
R. E. Leyendecker, a dealer in antiques.
Fred Metzler, Koenig's private secretary.
George Fuchs, who worked for Koenig and had a quarrel with his employer last week.
The quarrel between Fuchs and Koenig is said to have added the police in unearthing certain facts which they had long been trying to learn.
Schleinli, besides a police charge of

WEATHER
It may seem a pity that there should be a rainy day for the important event in Washington, and then again it might be the best news in the world for those immediately concerned to hear that it was sure to rest cats and dogs there tonight. That would tend to diminish the crowds of inquisitive persons who are certain to try to see as much of the wedding festivities as is humanly possible. We for uninvited guests. Very likely the President would prefer a brief news note in the papers about it instead of the columns we all want to read. But his preferences are not to be considered. He is not a private person. Whether a people calls its head President or King, he is theirs; he is public property. Louis XVI would probably have kept his head if he had lived in Paris and let himself be seen instead of hiding himself away at Versailles.
In any case, one resident of Washington won't lose his head.
FORECAST
For Philadelphia and vicinity—Partly cloudy tonight and Sunday; colder tonight, with lowest about 32 degrees; fresh westerly winds.

KELLER WILL TELL OF BOX MURDER, POLICE BELIEVE

Confession Expected From Man Held in the Trunk Mystery Case

NET CLOSES ABOUT HIM

Trunk Murder Theories
McNichol murdered in his factory at 12th and Hamilton streets. Time of murder between 8 and 10 a. m., March 30, 1914, the day he disappeared.
Body placed in trunk in McNichol's factory.
Trunk carted to 4062 Frankford avenue and buried in cellar of laundry occupied by Keller & Connelly. City-wide search for truckman engaged for this work.
Connelly, Keller's partner in laundry, says he saw Keller digging in cellar near where buried trunk was found.
Motive for crime believed to be connected with fact that McNichol had obtained $4000 shortly before his disappearance and this money has never been accounted for.
Trace of bullet wounds said to have been found in body in trunk.

Captain of Detectives Cameron and the detectives working on the trunk murder said today that they believed their case against Edward Keller was complete, and that they expected a confession from the man who was locked in a cell at City Hall yesterday, to await the action of the coroner. He is charged by the police with the murder of Daniel J. McNichol, the accusation having been changed from "suspicion of murder" to "murder."
New evidence was obtained today. It makes more certain the identification of the body found in a brass-bound trunk in the cellar of Keller's old Frankford laundry as that of McNichol, and it reveals further details about the career of the accused man. One important task remains for the police, to find "Al" Young, who worked for McNichol and Keller and who is believed to have been a witness of certain events directly or indirectly connected with the murder.
Mrs. Keller visited her husband in his cell at City Hall today. She was accompanied by a woman friend, and both carried paper bags containing delicacies for the prisoner. She was told there was a report that she would leave her husband as a result of the charges against him.
"That is false," she said. "I will be loyal to him to the end of the world. He has confessed to nothing for he has committed no crime. He has always treated me well." She paused and thought for a moment. "Even if he did commit any such 'crime,'" she added, "which he did not, it would have been that he was driven to it."
This is the police theory of the murder. Keller, a man of 47, who had had a checkered career, and was always changing his occupation and residence (he lived at several different places in the northeastern part of the city before he established his present home at 312 Frankford avenue), met McNichol in the latter part of 1913. McNichol was then only about 23 years old, but owned several properties. He lived with his young wife at the home of her widowed mother, Mrs. Michael Jennings, 866 North 22d street. He had been married in the fall of 1913.
McNichol wanted to go into business. Keller advised him to form a leather

Others known to have been injured.

Five men were killed and at least 20 persons were injured late yesterday afternoon a mile and a half from Chester, when the fog nullified the automatic precision of the Baltimore and Ohio signal system and three trains ran together at terrific speed. Two officials of the road today said the engineer ran past the signal due to the fog.
Nearly all the victims were on a local train, made up of wooden coaches that had just moved from a siding to a main line. A 20-coach special from Baltimore to this city hit the rear end of the local while running at a speed of 50 miles an hour, and ripped through three coaches before coming to a halt.
Before the air was cleared of flying steel and timber—and the injured—the afternoon express from this city to Baltimore, moving at a mile a minute, shot into the debris and cut through it like a shell for nearly a hundred yards.
Four hours later the dead and injured had been removed to the Chester Hospital or to emergency hospitals in nearby dwellings, and a force of men started in to clear the tracks. Traffic over the line was normal late this morning, and the mist was still so thick that passengers on passing trains could hardly see the

"You Ain't Gonna Git in Dis House," Negro Maid Says to Curious Folk

Wilson "Happy as a Boy" on Day of His Wedding

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—President Wilson was declared by those closest to him in his White House family to be as "happy as a boy" today.

A special delivery messenger reached the White House early today with a package which he had been instructed to deliver personally to the President. It was the gift that the President will tonight make to his bride and which she will wear for the first time during the ceremony.

The President and Mrs. Galt talked briefly over the phone soon after they arose today and it was said that arrangements had been made for the President to motor to the Galt home before lunch to look over the wedding presents.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—With one of the worst rainstorms of the season sweeping over Washington, President Wilson and Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt completed their preparations for their marriage tonight at the home of the bride, 1308 20th street, N. W.

Around the White House and the Galt residence the wind howled in frenzy. Pavements were turned into small river beds and buildings were lashed by a driving rain.

Toward early afternoon, however, the rain and wind ceased. The curtain of black clouds lifted, and the sun gave fair promise of remaining on the job throughout the rest of the day.

Shortly after breakfast this afternoon the President left for a while the state papers he was trying to dispose of before leaving town and drove to the Galt residence. He remained there only a brief while, however, and on his way back to the White House stopped at his bank. At noon he attended the christening of his granddaughter, Ellen Wilson McAdoo, in the blue room of the White House.

OUTSIDE THE GALT HOME, Washington, Dec. 18.—"Looks here like Miss, I see sorry, but you ain't gonna get in dis house for no wedding or no 'foolation'." The ebony black face of Aunt Susy crinkled with lines of determination. Her squat foot of tremendous proportions prevented the door from opening more than a foot or two inches. Her exalted person, clothed principally in a huge white apron and a white cap, precluded any view of the interior of the small and inconspicuous home at 1308 20th street, N. W., which has become today the most interesting domicile in the world.

Outside the early gatherers who, pursuing a policy laid down by our respected President of watchful waiting, took up their stand before noon today to catch at least a glimpse of the Chief Executive of his ilk, but when he ventures out tonight after having been seen in a big group, crissed their sympathy at the poor newspaper person's "throw down"—the name being myself. But somehow or other one doesn't mind being thrown down when ambassadors, millionaires, celebrities, in fact everybody in the world but those fortunate enough to belong to the President's or Mrs. Galt's immediate families, are being subjected to the same undignified procedure.

THE OFFICIAL THROWER

Aunt Susy, dusky dragon that she is, is the official "thrower." There's no getting by her, for ever since the announcement of Mrs. Galt's engagement the best wit and ingenuity of the newspaper world has been storming the Galt stronghold. Susy has been a match for them all. Today she is a triumphant monument of doorknocking efficiency.

However, this is a democracy and many persons have made up their minds to see the wedding from the outside at least. No Swiss guards or royal artillery or whatever a monarch would employ to

MORGAN EMPLOYEES TO GET YEAR'S PAY AS GIFTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Wall street is going to pass prosperity around, at least among its salaried employes. PEACE "DOVE" STILL CRIPPLED AS SHIP NEARS SHORE

ABOARD THE S. S. OSCAR II, by wireless to Christiania and thence by cable via London, Dec. 18.—As the peace expedition organized by Henry Ford nears Christiania the hope of getting the boys out of the trenches by Christmas is abandoned. The question of peace in Europe has been temporarily forgotten for the more important (locally) question of restoring peace among the pacifists on the Oscar II. The wounds caused by the efforts to line all the American delegates up in opposition to the Washington Administration's policy of preparedness have not yet healed. The opponents of the anti-preparedness resolutions will decide as soon as they reach Christiania whether they will leave the expedition.

ABYSSINIA OFFERED ALLIES 200,000 MEN

PARIS, Dec. 18.—Lidj Jemsa, the young Emperor of Abyssinia, is so favorably disposed toward the Entente Allies that he not only resisted efforts of German agents to induce him to abrogate treaties with Great Britain, Italy and France last year, but offered 200,000 soldiers to be used by the Allies as their military necessities demanded, according to Pierre Alpye, a member of the Colonial Committee of the Chamber of Deputies. M. Alpye made this assertion in connection with the resolution that the French Government seek immediately the co-operation of the Abyssinian troops.
